Memories
Ryan Roberts

Memories, what have you done to me?
Brought a smirk of new on my face,
yet tears from what seem like decades ago?
Damned memories, like an etch a sketch that won’t erase in the back of your skull.
They're like marriage; for better or for worse.
"Like a broken record" is the saying because they sure do go back and forth through your mind.
The thing about a memory
is that you never forget it.
You can only repress them, and even then they’re still there.
Go bash your skull open if you want amnesia ‘Cause that’s the only cure for memories.
It’s sad to hear a mother remember her 1st born son and smile and the next second start to lose it all once she remembers when he died. Memorial whispers like flames that either warm you or burn your entire world to ashes.